Wicks Hears Bids Will Be Advertised By State Aug. 20

Route Has Been Source of Complaints, Since It Is Used by School Buses

A letting on the proposed reconstruction of the Phoenicia-Stony Clove highway which stirred complaints and petitions among residents of the 'Notch' within the past year, has been set for August 20, State Senator Arthur H. Wicks of this city learned today in a letter from the New York State Department of Public Works.

The letter, signed by C. A. Bonaparte, deputy superintendent of the department explained:

"Dear Senator Wicks: "Your interest in the construction of the Phoenicia-Stony Clove highway in Greene county, has been brought to my attention by Mr. E. D. Tallamy, our chief engineer with whom you have discussed this matter on several occasions.

"I am happy to advise you that this project is being advertised for letting to be held by this department on August 20, 1947." One section of the route is in Ulster county and the other in Greene county. Several residents of the area held meetings during the year to discuss the complaint that the road was unsafe for travel of school buses, particularly during the winter. A petition was circulated and a request made for immediate action on the reconstruction of the route.

Senator Wicks, as the above letter explains, discussed early reconstruction of the route with highway officials. The state department, it is expected, will begin work on the mountain route as soon as a bid is accepted.

Morris Is For Using 1,000 Acres

Would Have New Street From North Front to Manor Avenue as Building Aid

Advocates Action

Says He Has No Self Interest, but Sees Big Boost for City

Immediate action for relief of the local housing shortage was advocated today by Claremont Robert Morris, local realtor, who proposed a study of housing needs and of the suggestion to construct a new street from North Front street to Manor avenue as a means of opening 1,000 additional acres for housing.

The local housing shortage will be worse in five years unless steps are taken now, the local man said, and he proposed action by the municipality and local banking interests in drawing up a plan to give the city more housing.

A study of the proposal to build the new street is expected to be held later, Mr. Morris said. The plan, as he sees it, would provide a new street starting from a point near where North Front street joins Clinton avenue and extend to a point near Charlotte street on Manor avenue.

Boost for City
Mr. Morris said he has no personal interest in the land through which the proposed street would be built, but he is interested in the development of new housing for the city and further advancement of the city itself.

The local veterans housing unit at Loughran Park, he said, is currently "flipped" up and there is a waiting list of at least 50 now seeking homes.

A move should be started now to "assemble the facts," Mr. Morris believes, so that conditions will not grow gradually worse and leave the city with a new housing problem in another five years.

The present temporary housing unit is to last at least five years under provisions of a lease between the city and state. Meanwhile, Mr. Morris believes, it is logical to anticipate considerable increases in family life in the unit during this time and many of the families will be living under cramped conditions.

The local realtor said that he advocated action "strongly and immediately," to determine what can be done about bettering local housing, and he backs the proposal to build the new street.

Truesdell Body Found In Esopus

Mrs. Susie Truesdell Reported Husband Missing; Grappling Undertaken

Is Found Sunday

Discovery of Car Leads to Search in Lower Creek

A verdict of suicide by drowning was returned by Coroner Arthur C. Chipp, Kerhonkson, in the case of Monroe Truesdell, 61, of Malden, whose body was recovered from the Esopus Creek Sunday morning by Louis Burnett and Floyd Newkirk, both of Saugerties, who assisted the Saugerties police in grappling for the body.

The Saugerties police told the Freeman this morning that Mrs. Susie Truesdell, wife of the dead man, reported him missing from his home at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. An alarm was sent out and the police organized a search.

Mrs. Truesdell said her husband had been suffering from a nervous condition for several weeks. He was employed as a fire extinguisher salesman.

Truesdell's car, a 1937 Willys, was found parked near the lower Esopus Creek area by the police at 1:30 a. m. Sunday. The police enlisted the aid of five grappling boats and began dragging the creek. The body was discovered at approximately 11 o'clock Sunday morning in the lower creek near the New York Steamboat Co. warehouse.

Coroner Chipp was notified and authorized the police to remove the body, which was later taken to the Hartley and Lamoreux Funeral Home in Saugerties. An official verdict of suicide by drowning was returned.

The rider was thrown from the horse before one of the largest crowds to date this season at a rodeo held by the dude ranch.

Raymond Brewer of Milledgeville, Ga., who can be seen entangled in the silk of the parachute of Pfc. Wilbur Burnette of Jacksonville, Fla. Two Persons Hurt When Car, Truck Collide on 9-W

Milk Truck and Auto Tangle Then Big Tractor Overturns on Car

A two-vehicle accident on Route 9W near the Glasco turnpike, about one and a half miles south of Saugerties, resulted in injuries to both drivers, according to State Police of the Lake Katrine barracks.

A 1945 tractor trailer, owned by the McDermott Brothers, Dairies, Nyack, and operated by Robert W. Van Voorhees, 36 of Preston Hollow, crashed into a 1935 sedan operated by Thomas Thomaides, 49, of Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, at about 11:30 a. m. Saturday, the police said.

Thomaides sustained lacerations of the face and body, and contusions of the back. He was taken to Dale's Sanitarium by Dr. Lester A. Sinking of Saugerties. Van Voorhees suffered slight concussion and bruises about the head and body, and was treated by Dr. B. W. Gifford, Saugerties. Authorities at Dale's reported Thomaides' conditions this morning as very good.

According to Corporal Joseph Visco, who investigated the accident with Trooper Heywood Rasmussen, Thomaides was driving south and attempted to make a left turn, going to the east side of the road. The tractor trailer, which was behind him and attempting to pass at the time, swerved to the left to avoid a collision but crashed into the left side of the car forcing it into a telephone pole. The truck overturned, landing on the car and crushing the top. Milk bottles from the truck were strewn all over the road.

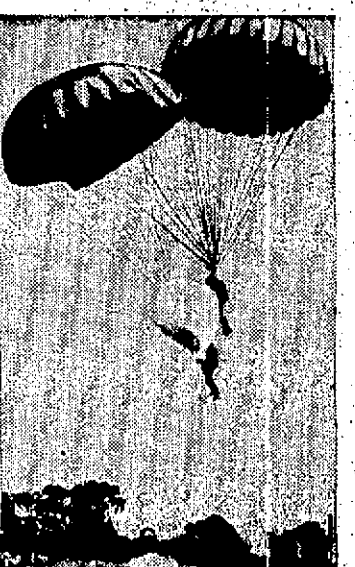

Thomaides' car was a total wreck, while the milk truck was badly damaged.

Woman Slightly Hurt When Struck by Auto

Mrs. Olga Hornbeck of 147 Washington avenue, who was slightly injured when struck by a car operated by Mrs. Sidney Halpern, 326 Washington avenue, Saturday morning, was treated at the Kingston Hospital and returned home, the police reported today.

The accident, which occurred on Wall street, was reported to the police by Mrs. Halpern who said that as she was trying to back up her vehicle near the curb, her car struck Mrs. Hornbeck. It was reported to the police that the injured woman, who was standing near the front end of another car to the rear, was out of the line of vision of Mrs. Halpern.

Player May Lose Sight In Right Eye; Hit by Ball

Marshall Miller, 62, Wrentham street, superintendent of the local fire alarm system, completed 33 years of service with the local fire department August 1, it was learned today.

Nine of the 33 years, Mr. Miller reported today were served as assistant superintendent, and he now has but one year to go to round out a quarter of a century service as superintendent of the system.

Ten years ago, the superintendent designed and installed a new alarm system, changing the alarm intervals from the former two-second to three-second time. The change made the local alarm system similar to that of New York city.

Only once in his many years of service, the superintendent reported, was he involved in a major mishap, and that was in 1925 when he and Captain Wright Maines were overcome by smoke in the Rafalowsky building, Broadway and Thomas street.

The superintendent was associated through his years of service in the department with Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy.

State Police Arrest Four With Road Block Near Bedford

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP)—Two Philadelphia men and their teen-age girl companions were held in Dutchess county jail today after a week-end trip that State Police Inspector John J. Quinn said included the theft of an automobile in Philadelphia, a tavern robbery at Pawling, N. Y., and a gun fight with a pursuing patrolman.

Booked at the jail on charges of robbery, grand larceny and possession of dangerous weapons, the four gave their names as James Robert Hazlett, 21, (30 E. Silver street); Julius Bercoe, 20 (same address); Elaine June Pole, 16, (7454 Lincklin Heights), and Jeanne Elaine Adcock, 17, (7412 Fayette street).

Quinn said the quartet was captured at a State Police road block a mile south of Bedford Village early yesterday after abandoning the Philadelphia car, tramping three miles through wooded swampland and taking another automobile.

State Police said the girls told them they left Philadelphia Friday night in the belief they were eloping with the men.

Quinn said the two couples arrived early yesterday at a tavern near Pawling and at closing time the two men held up the proprietor and took $150.

Police Say Probe Being Conducted

Driver of Car Which Struck Fields Said Man Was Unseen Until Hit

Autopsy Ordered

Coroner Says Dr. Taylor Would Conduct an Autopsy

Romaine Fields, 70, of Mt. Tremper was instantly killed Sunday night when hit by the automobile of Sherman Scott Miller, 27, of Olive Bridge, according to Coroner Arthur C. Chipp, of Kerhonkson.

The accident occurred about 10:30 o'clock on Route 28 a short distance north of Eugene Hoffman's Restaurant between Mt. Tremper and Phoenicia.

According to Coroner Chipp, Fields, who yesterday was celebrating his 70th birthday, had been drinking. Coroner Chipp said this information came from Fields' son, John. The coroner also said a partially-filled beer bottle was in Fields' possession at the time of the accident.

It was reported by the State Police today that no arrests were made, but that the accident is being investigated.

Coroner Chipp gave a temporary verdict of accidental death and said his official verdict would follow the autopsy which he ordered, and the results of an investigation. Dr. J. S. Taylor, Kingston Laboratory director, is in charge of the autopsy which Coroner Chipp said would be held at the Brethaupt Funeral Home, Phoenicia, where Fields' body was taken.

"Appeared Suddenly"
Miller, who was accompanied by Miss Marion Becker, 18, of Hunter, told the coroner, Fields, who was alone, appeared suddenly in front of his car as though he had arisen from the roadway, where he might have been lying. It is thought Fields was on his way home at the time.

Miller, a New York Telephone Company employee, said he was on his way to Hunter at the time of the crash and was traveling about 30 to 35 miles per hour, the coroner said. The body was thrown about 30 to 40 feet from the point of impact.

Coroner Chipp said injuries included a broken left leg, severe lacerations of the right arm and scalp. The coroner added the autopsy probably would show internal injuries and might reveal a fractured skull.

Stopped at Boiceville

The coroner said Miller told him that he left his home for Hunter about 8:30 and stopped at the Pizzeria Lunch, Boiceville, with his companion.

The accident was reported to Lake Katrine Barracks, New York State Police, by Trooper Ray Dunn, who is stationed at Phoenicia. Trooper Dunn, Corporal John Metzger and Trooper E. J. Rock made an investigation. Ulster County Sheriff George Smith's office was represented by Deputy Theron Townsend, of Shandaken.

Miss Becker and Mr. Miller were the only witnesses, the coroner said.

Fields was employed as a garbage collector by Wamsley Brothers, Phoenicia. The coroner said Fields worked a half day Sunday.

nounced Sunday a cease-fire effective this midnight. Dutch advances had halted even before the deadline.

Jogjakarta announced plans for a midnight broadcast by President Soekarno in his capacity as commander in chief of troops.

A Dutch spokesman said most Netherlands units were already pulled up, several hours before the midnight deadline. There was almost no activity today at Semarang, which had been the Dutch troops' expected jumping-off place for an attack toward Jogjakarta.

The United Nations Security Council last Friday called upon both sides to cease fighting.

In statements yesterday the Indonesians said they were "willing" to cease hostilities, but that a truce could be carried out effectively only if the Dutch withdrew to demarcation lines established last October. There was no indication of Dutch agreement to this.

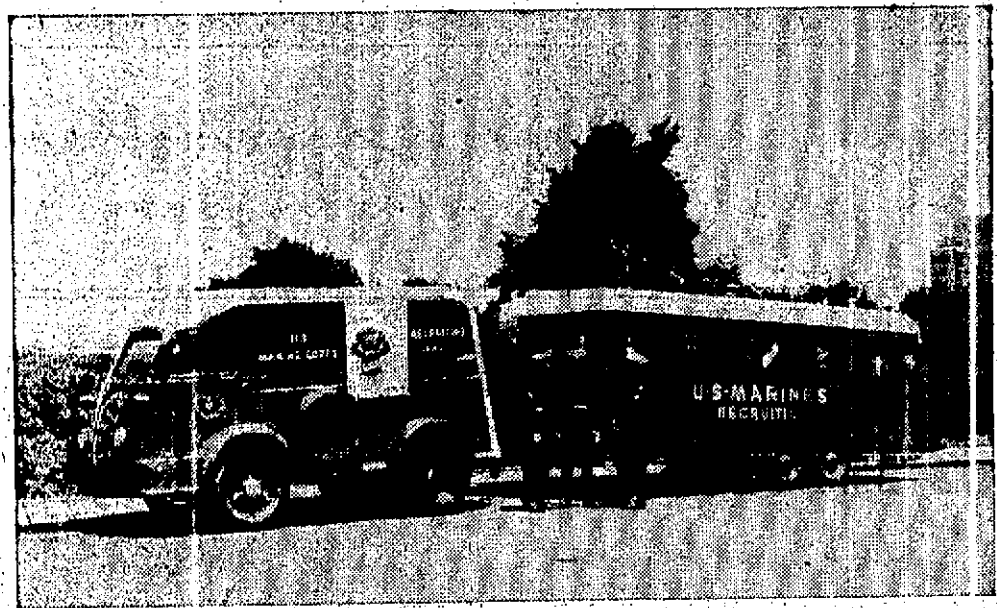

At noon the Dutch announced landing of troops on the island of Madura, off the east coast of Java.

Brewery Merger Urged
New Zealand's brewing industry would be merged into one single company, under a plan suggested to the Prime Minister in Wellington by Sir Michael Myers, ex-Chief Justice. Amalgamation of all breweries and refusal to issue new licenses would eliminate the tie-in between brewers and taverns, Sir Michael says. Capitalization of the new company would be based on market value of the shares in all the existing companies, and shares would be issued accordingly to present holders. A board of nine would manage the company, four to be named by shareholders and four by the Governor General. The chairman would be an independent person, not a shareholder.

Royal Marriage Poiled
A poll just completed in England by a "tabloid" on whether Princess Elizabeth should marry Prince Philip of Greece, showed some interesting results. Among many people, newspaper "interference" of this kind in the private life of the young princess aroused indignation. However, many other readers hastened to express their views. The results showed 55 per cent in favor of the marriage if the Prince and Princess are in love; 40 per cent against a marriage with a Greek Prince, and five per cent holding that no political obstacle should be placed in the way if the Prince and Princess want to marry, but that the Princess, in the event of public disapproval, should renounce her right to the throne.

attempting to field a pop foul behind third base. Brian Kerr, Dodger centerfielder, was batting at the time.

The foul pop-up appeared to be only a routine putout, when McKenzie raced toward the light tower behind third base. He appeared to have gauged the flight of the ball properly when he turned sharply to make the catch. Then it happened. With a resounding thud that could be heard all over the ball park, the ball bounced off McKenzie's eye and the Bloomingdale infielder fell to the ground unconscious.

Players from both sides rushed to the aid of the stricken infielder and after the usual futile call for a doctor in the stands, McKenzie was conveyed to the Kingston Hospital in a private car.

Lost Sight of Ball
McKenzie was reported as saying he had lost sight of the ball when he veered sharply for the catch. He never got his glove near it and he sustained the impact of the ball squarely over his right eye.

Whether or not McKenzie was caught in a bad angle and was blinded by the lights is a matter of speculation. It was the first accident of this type since the lights were installed in 1939.

McKenzie's injury was by far the most serious of the three accidents involving ball players during the last four nights. The other two involved mishaps at second base with players attempting to break up double plays.

Has Broken Nose
Harry Schick, Stroudsburg outfielder, suffered a broken nose when he was hit in the face by a ball thrown by Bobby Newhard in Thursday night's game. Schick barked into second base determined to break up a double play when he got directly in line with Newhard's relay to first base. The ball struck him squarely in the face, breaking his nose. He was treated at Kingston hospital where he stayed for a couple of days and was then released.

Chris Kitson, brilliant young Dodger shortstop, suffered cuts in his cheek and nose when he became tangled up in the flying spikes of a Stroudsburg player under similar circumstances Wednesday night at the stadium. Kitson's injury was not as severe as thought at first and he was able to return to the Dodger lineup for Sunday's doubleheader.

Property of Indians
McKenzie is property of the Cleveland Indians of the American League and ranks among the best third base prospects in the North Atlantic League. In last night's opener he had collected four singles in five trips to the plate and had batted perfectly. He leads off for the Trojans and has a batting average of .286.

The only other serious injury ever sustained by a ball player since the stadium lights were installed occurred in 1942 when a Puerto Rican Star player was struck in the head by a ball pitched by Charlie Neff of the Kingston Recreation. The Puerto Rican suffered a brain concussion and was hospitalized for several days.

G. I. of '63 Marshals Comrades

John Henry Grate, 102-year-old commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, is pictured in his Atwater, Ohio, home, playing Chinese checkers with his housekeeper, Mrs. Frank S. Nichols, before departing for Cleveland, to head what may be the last national encampment of the GAR veterans. Keen-minded and a zealous student of current affairs, he says Russia is the biggest threat to world peace and that U. S. foreign policy must be backed up with a potentially strong military establishment.

More deaths and injuries in traffic accidents are caused by drivers from 16 to 21 years of age than any other age group.

Only one half as many accidents are caused by students who have had driving instruction as are caused by those without training.

One million new teen-age drivers take to the highway every year.

The conclusion to be drawn here is startlingly clear. If we are to reduce the tragic plague of traffic accidents which in one year can snuff out over 33,500 lives, we must train the new generations of drivers before and as they get behind the wheel. During the high school years, when our youths become eligible for driving on a point of age, is the right time for the right lesson.

Figures show that at least three out of five high school students will be either driving an automobile at graduation or within three years thereafter. This fact alone should be sufficient to make pre-driver education mandatory in all high schools.

At present, a little over 5,000 high schools throughout the nation have some form of driver education program. But this is only one fourth of those that should have one. Public opinion strongly urges driver training in the schools. A recent survey made by the National Committee for Traffic Safety showed that 78 per cent of the people endorse such a program. A majority of these want the training carried to actual behind-the-wheel instruction.

Then let our educators heed the facts. Let them answer to the public demand, with, of course, public support. Posterity will most certainly condemn this generation if we fail to prepare the youth of today to safely live in the motorized world we have created.

One of the finest things in recent American history is the way North and South America are beginning to learn to get along together. And if this continues, our western world may develop into just one big, fine, universal America of many nations but with which close bonds of friendship and mutual interest.

CAUTIOUS SWIMMING

One of the finest and most healthful and enjoyable sports in the world is swimming, but obviously there are two sides to it. Every summer there is a sad toll of victims who, for one reason or another, are drowned in the swimming pools. Estimates at this time of the year are naturally impossible, but to observers in general it seems as if there are more drownings than ever before.

The first principle of the sport, of course, is learning to swim, and there is not enough attention given to it. The good swimmer is a joy and an asset to every swimming pool, provided that he doesn't endanger and encourage others, less expert, to go beyond their depth. At every swimming site there should be at least one strong and expert swimmer to "stick around" and make sure that doubtful swimmers are not taking dangerous risks, and that smart-alecs who endanger others are put in their place.

This goes for large public pools and beaches where life-guards can be paid. The kids who swim in secluded places must learn to behave themselves and respect the power of water.

RIJENA'S VARIED FATE

Where is Rijena? You don't know? Well, then, where is Fiume?

This should bring an answer, and the discovery that Rijena and Fiume are the same. The fervent nationalism that rages in Eastern Europe has changed the name of Fiume as it has that of Koenigsberg, Tilsit and many other famous cities.

In 1919 Fiume was in everyone's mouth, Italians and Yugoslavs both demanded this Dalmatian port. The Treaty of London, by which Italy entered the war in 1915, gave it to Yugoslavia. The Italians later chose to disregard this agreement, and demanded Fiume. President Wilson sided with Yugoslavia, and the Italians temporarily left the Paris Peace Conference. Yugoslavia got

'These Days'

CONFLICT OF PURPOSE

The ancient method of imperialism was to conquer an area, perhaps to seize it, certainly to colonize it, to establish ports, and to exploit the region and its people commercially. The Phoenicians thus established Carthage; the Greeks dotted the Mediterranean with a thousand cities; Alexander tried to hold the known world of his day; the Roman legions marched through Europe, Asia and Africa, wherever they could. Imperialism is as old as history; colonization is one of the earliest organized efforts of man.

In more modern times, Great Britain, France, Spain and Holland made the world smaller by vast colonization and imperialistic projects in every part of the world. The Western European system involved the bringing of weak and backward peoples into the economic and cultural orbit of Western civilization. As in the instances of North and South America, Australia, New Zealand, and Central Africa, it meant opening altogether new and hitherto unknown areas to contact with Europe. In the instances of such countries as India, China, Egypt, Syria, it resurrected ancient and tottering states.

The resurgence of nationalism in colonial countries today is not a condemnation of imperialism. Rather it is evidence that the impact of Western civilization has benefited these peoples, has stimulated the powers of self-government, cultivated pride of culture that once had made them significant states. Western imperialism has, on the whole, been historically beneficial to all who lived in its atmosphere.

Russian imperialism has been essentially different. In the first place, it has dealt entirely with contiguous territory. With one exception, Alaska, the Russians crossed no vast bodies of water, met no obstacles, fought no great wars, subdued no powerful peoples to achieve their ends. They simply snowballed. They rolled along wherever there was a weak spot. They moved across the Urals and Siberia into the Maritime Provinces terminating at Vladivostok because there was nothing to resist them. Small tribes of nomadic peoples, the remnants of the Golden Horde of Genghis Khan, were in no condition to withstand their advances. Furthermore, the Russian strain is as much Mongol as Slav, as much Tartar as European. It was easier to absorb than to conquer the Asiatics with whom they dealt. It is still easier.

The Russian southward imperialist trend encountered difficulties. The Armenians resisted. The Rumanians objected to Bessarabia being taken from them. The Moslems looked toward Byzantium and Mecca rather than to Moscow. Nevertheless, all territory was contiguous. It was merely a matter of moving outward the bulkheads of Empire.

By Yalta, Russia achieved her greatest advance, for that agreement gave to the Soviets the maximum aspiration of Czarist imperialism. But Yalta gave to Russia no territory, except perhaps the Kuriles, which do not lie contiguous to Russian soil and the Kuriles are only separated by a narrow body of water.

The Soviet method of imperialistic control is different from that of any Western country, although it is not dissimilar to the spread of the United States from 13 separated colonies to 48 federated states. The "Federation" system—The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—might from the Russian standpoint encompass the world. For any nation might under certain conditions join the Federation. The Third International and Colonial Questions of the Third International states:

"Federation is a transitional form towards the complete union of the workers of all countries. . . . We must strive for ever closer federative connections, bearing in mind first the impossibility of maintaining the Soviet Republics surrounded by powerful imperialist nations; second, the necessity of a close economic union of the Soviet Republics, without which the restoration of the forces of production destroyed by imperialism and the assuring of the welfare of the workers is impossible; third, the striving towards the creation of a unified world economy based on one general plan and regulated by the proletariat of all the nations of the world."

That this plan was laid down several years ago, it is now in practice. Only the existence of the United Nations and the dread of war with the United States prevents Poland, Bulgaria, Albania and Yugoslavia from being absorbed in such a Federation immediately.

That Body of Yours

LUMPS IN THYROID GLAND

Perhaps you see passers-by who have an enlargement of the thyroid gland in the front part of the neck and wonder why they do not have it removed. You have friends who have had these enlarged glands and have had them removed by surgery or X-ray treatments.

The reason that these passers-by have not had this large lump or nodule removed is that they have already consulted their physician and have been told that it is not dangerous. It is an active goiter and is not dangerous to life. The physician has found the goiter to be free from danger because heart rate is normal, no eye symptoms, no nervousness, nor loss of weight. He may have had a metabolism test which showed that the body processes were working at a normal rate—not too fast. For many years now most physicians have told these individuals to "forget it," or perhaps have suggested a visit once a year.

What will surprise physicians and individuals with an innocent lump or nodule in the thyroid gland is that physicians are finding that these innocent nodules or lumps in the thyroid gland do not all remain innocent, that some of them go on to the active form of goiter and some even develop cancer.

In an editorial in "Clinical Medicine," based on a letter from Dr. William F. Reinhold, Jr., noted surgeon of Baltimore, we read that "no one can be more certain a nodule (lump) in the thyroid gland is innocent from just feeling it with the hands (palpation) than one can an early tumor or lump in the breast. The number of cases of malignancy (cancer) developing in such nodules has increased tremendously in our clinic in the last 10 years and is now between 10 and 15 per cent in private practice. All nodules in the thyroid gland should be considered malignant until proven otherwise."

Because he has been assured by his physician that these lumps are harmless he may not notice early symptoms such as pressure or increased hardness of the goiter until it is too late.

Remember, these lumps are harmless in 9 of every 10 cases, but as there is one chance in 10 that they may not remain harmless, regular visits to the family physician should be made.

GOITER

Goiter may be of the simple type which is not dangerous or it may be severe. Send today for Dr. Barton's informative booklet on this subject called "Goiter: Simple and Severe." Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

Annapolis (AP)—Midshipman "Joe Gish"—the U. S. Naval Academy's equivalent of "Joe College"—has a language all his own.

It's an argot for his off hours, made up of old and new slang phrases, nautical terms and ordinary words that have developed a special flavor and meaning at the academy.

Here are some samples, as taken from "Red Points," the annual handbook of the brigade of midshipmen:

Anchor man—The lowest ranking man in the class. There, but for the grace of God, walks a civilian.

Belay that—Disregard the last order.

Blige—To flunk out, to be returned to "civilian duty."

Brick—The blind date who was supposed to have looks, personality and money—and turned out only to have money.

Bucket—Someone mentally dull.

Bull—Courses in history, English and government. Also, the filler of 600 words in a 500-word theme.

Chop chop—To move at double time.

Collision mat—Pancakes; a la Bancroft Hall.

Eyes in the boat—Head and eyes to the front.

Fin out—Straighten out your fingers at your side.

Flake out—To take a nap, same as the army's "hit the sack."

Flower pot—A girl who is both a "brick" and a "bucket," as described above.

Foo foo—Perfume.

Fruit—An easy assignment or quiz, or anything that insults the intelligence.

Gonk—The cranium.

Gouge—To cheat. Also, a solution to a problem "that even a prof can understand."

Gravy train—A rich girl friend.

Greasier—One who "fills the wheels of his own progress" with grease, which means pull or influence.

Hair tobie—Steak sauce.

Holy Joe—The chaplain.

Jamoke, Java, Jo—Coffee "plus" beer confection.

Lost Battalion—Those who have to stay for re-exams while the others are on leave.

Misery Hall—Overhaul spot for damaged athletes.

Miss Springfield—"Our most constant drag, the rifle."

Monthly insult—"That very small part of $65 on which we get our hands."

O.A.O.—The "one and only" sweetheart. Also the "off and on" girl and the "one among others."

Pogey bait—Candy.

Prade—Something midshipmen are often in but never see: A dress parade.

Red-eye—"That great disguise, ketchup."

R.H.I.P.—"Rank hath its privileges." This term is used in all military services.

River—A flunk exam.

Sack—Bed or bunk. Also, "the date who should have stayed at home."

Sea gull—"Various types of bird served in the mess hall under the general classification of 'chicken.'"

Shivering Liz—A well known gelatinous dessert.

Skag—A cigarette.

Skivvies—Underclothes.

Snake—A midshipman who doesn't bring a date, but always has someone else's.

Sleeper—The midshipmen's soda fountain.

Wife—"One who shares your money, razor, toothpaste, drag, et al.; your roommate."

Incidentally, don't call a midshipman a "Middy" in his presence. The academy slang guide says "Middy" is an odious term used in uninformed circles synonymously with "midshipman."

Questions—Answers

Q—What state produces the best grade of oil?

A—Dry ice does not melt. It sublimates—that is, it changes directly from the solid to the gaseous state.

Q—Is a stamp more valuable if it is on its original envelope?

A—Yes, a tied-to-cover stamp is worth more than the stamp itself.

Democracies Seem Headed Toward Economic Collapse as Inflation Spiral Revolves; Producers Resist Truman

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 4.—The inflation spiral keeps on revolving. The indisputable fact emerges that the something-for-nothing or more-for-less-work doctrines are slowly but surely bringing the democracies of the world closer and closer to the brink of economic collapse.

In Britain, the cry is for more production. But there is no relief in sight for a nation which needs to produce more. It must be able to sell outside the country enough goods to balance the cost of buying food and necessary commodities from other countries.

In America, the demand by the union labor bosses in 1945 and 1946 that workers get approximately the same pay for 40 hours of work that they got for a regular workweek and overtime during the war has resulted in an inflationary cycle that is still pyramiding business operating costs.

President Truman, who refused to maintain wage controls but for a long time insisted on keeping price controls, has fought a losing battle to persuade American producers to absorb wage increases within their existing prices. He urged them to take a chance on quantity production or large volume of sales to get a profit. They didn't like the risk in the face of rising costs in materials.

Truman failed to persuade such union bosses as John L. Lewis to hold the line, too. As a consequence, despite the administration's efforts to belittle the real meaning of the wage boost in coal and to insist that the costs could be absorbed, there have been serious sequelae.

Steel companies, faced with a rising price in coal, have lifted prices of steel products.

Automobile companies, faced with a rise in steel prices, have lifted the prices of automobiles.

In countless businesses, steel is the backbone of the product made and hence influences the price. So coal influenced steel and now steel is influencing a host of other things—including new construction.

When will the spiral end? The answer is that, for the time being, our export trade is absorbing a huge volume of American goods and when the exports decline—as they have already begun to do—the American domestic market will absorb some of this export business for a while until shortages are met. This may take a few months anyway.

Then what—when shortages are met?

Then what—when shortages are met?

The answer is that, for the time being, our export trade is absorbing a huge volume of American goods and when the exports decline—as they have already begun to do—the American domestic market will absorb some of this export business for a while until shortages are met. This may take a few months anyway.

Red Planes Are Shown

Moscow, Aug. 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin and other Soviet leaders stood for two and one-half hours in a hot sun yesterday to view an exhibition of Russian jet planes at an air show marking Soviet Aviation Day. Dozens of planes of several different jet models roared past the crowds while the military attaches of many countries watched with interest. In the 1946 air show only one jet was shown.

Florida Witnesses Great Mass of Fish Killed by Plague

Clearwater, Fla., Aug. 4 (AP)—A great mass of dead fish—killed by a mysterious plague—was moving slowly northward along Florida's gulf coast today, and a health officer advised vacationists to postpone their vacations to the beaches in this area.

The mass with its accompanying amber colored waters was centered off Clearwater yesterday, moving about five miles every 24 hours. Dr. Franklin E. Campbell, Pinellas county health director, said no fish had been washed ashore here. However, further south along the Indian Rocks and Redington Beach areas, county workers and volunteers buried piles of fish in a trench two and half miles long. The health officer suggested that vacationists wait about "10 days before visiting the beaches. He stressed "we are not forbidding anything" and the difficulties from the masses of dead fish were "temporary."

The fish mass has been estimated to be 60 miles long and 2 miles wide. So many big fish are in the mass, sanitarians in Dr. Campbell's office said, it gives the appearance "that one could walk across it like logs."

— Close Ups —LET'S NOT BE TAKEN IN AGAIN

Mass blindness is a costly human phenomenon.

For years the British people paid little attention to the curriers of Socialism. Suddenly, in the fearful silence after the guns of World War II ceased firing, some weird noises by the political comrades of H. Laski stamped Britain.

The British people were hungry and war weary. Courage had been pumped out of them. In their weakness the future looked to the Socialists. Suddenly, in the fearful silence after the guns of World War II ceased firing, some weird noises by the political comrades of H. Laski stamped Britain.

There had to be some surer, easier way out. Like the Great Fear which, at a given signal, stamped the French into the bloody Revolution of 1789, just when their legitimate grievances were about to be resolved peacefully, the cry of despair sounded up and down the island by organized Socialist campaigners, fooled the British. It persuaded them to accept permanently the very thing they most hated—queuing up, taking orders, waiting on red tape.

The argument of the political evangelists did not make sense at any point. It was an emotional appeal. The people were dead-tired and famine-hungry, so they could get more by working less! Just let the government manage everything. No need to worry.

Other nations, they said, were nationalizing. Soon the whole world would be collectivized—this without proof—therefore Britain would have to collectivize in order to compete.

The younger men and women, freshly out of uniform and duly unhappy about class differences in their country, were told socialism would abolish the differences. In a sense it would, by whittling nearly everybody down to one level, as in Communist Russia. But, meanwhile it should have been foreseen that—as in Communist Russia—it would raise up a new crop of class distinctions. It would raise up an aristocracy of bureaucrats.

The socialists were right in their diagnosis that Britain was sick. They were without logic in their prescription of the remedy.

We Pay Their Debt!

Lord Macaulay warned a century ago that we Americans might someday, in a time of national weakness, be stampeded into surrendering irrevocably our freedom.

Without knowing it he foretold Britain's New Deal—except that no government is irrevocable. Individual liberty in Britain today is all but stamped out. To install a new window or change an old sink for a new, the Briton must get his government's permission. This may take him weeks, and may be rejected altogether.

If he wants to move and can find a vacancy, he must go through at least two boards, with a long period of time consumed—only to find, in all probability, that he will not be permitted to make the move.

There is the growing encroachment on freedom of radio and press inevitable in a bureaucracy which is determined to put over its plan on the people and will brook no interference.

The nationalized coal mines have proved the predictions of the Conservatives: that the government cannot compete with private enterprise. The British miner has his 35-hour week but he produces so little coal from the mines where he produced an abundance under private ownership that his country remains desperate.

Britain's mistake is not irrevocable. Already many a "liberal" is so sick of standing in line for everything, so fed up with bureaucratic orders, he is beginning to wonder. It is too plain that hours lost each day in red tape by the entire populace might be just the work time needed to pull the country out of a sink hole. It is becoming more difficult for the socialists to hide the fact that there's no substitute for work, and the additional fact that the work must have an incentive.

One day the old courage of the British will be there again and they will make short work of socialism. But that may take twenty years, especially if we are so foolish as to pay the deficits of their experiment. We have given the socialists a two-year send-off at a cost to us of $3,500,000,000. That money will be gone next year and we will be asked to further mortgage American enterprise to finance British socialism.

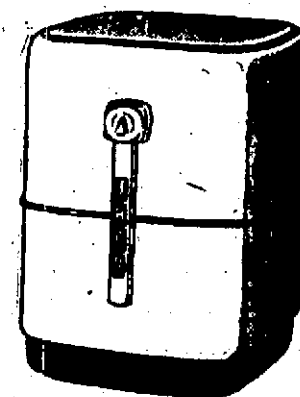

Let us not be led down this road to bankruptcy by mass blindness. (Copyright 1947 John F. Dille Co.)

An exterminating company in New York received a call from a woman with a strange request. She asked if they would sell her 10,000 cockroaches, 5,000 bedbugs and 1,000 ants.

"Well," replied the woman, "I'm moving tomorrow, and the landlord insists that I leave the place just as I found it."

Turn In Used Cooking Fats!
asks MARY MARGARET MCBRIDE, Famous Radio Commentator
One of the finest jobs ever done by American housewives has been in saving used fats! Since 1942, over 800 million pounds have been salvaged. But, as Secretary of Commerce W. A. Harriman points out, the job still isn't over. "Not only the United States, but the whole world still lacks adequate supplies of fats and oils. And we in America are particularly short of industrial fats, or their products, are needed to make many things, we use every day. The used fats you turn in will help tide us over until supplies are normal."

The presentations will be made for the U. S. Navy by the two former navy officers through the assistance of Chief Quartermaster Steve Smith, navy recruiting officer for the area.

Hasty Heart to Be Next at Playhouse With Michael Sivy

MICHAEL SIVY

Woodstock, Aug. 4—Beginning on August 5th, Woodstock Playhouse audiences will have the opportunity of seeing what is described as one of the most delightful comedies of recent years. The play is "The Hasty Heart" and one of the favorite actors of the Playhouse company will be seen in the starring role. He is Michael Sivy.

"The Hasty Heart" concerns the problems of a humorless young Scotsman who finds himself in an army hospital at the war's end. It is the Scotsman's lack of humor which provides the most delicious "comedy" of the play, and the comedy is added to in no small measure by the supporting roles of other soldiers, one an American, a British colonial, an Australian, and a cockney Englishman.

Marsh McLeod plays the role of the army nurse, who, by her gentle understanding attention, is able to bring the sour Scot from the doldrums to the realization of life's pleasures. Miss McLeod is remembered for her spectacularly brilliant performance in the title role of Joan of Lorraine.

Michael Sivy needs no introduction to Playhouse audiences. New York is already aware of the rare talents of this young actor. Last year, his first on Broadway brought him immediate acclaim for his remarkable performance in Temper The Wind and Bathsheba. In supporting roles, the Playhouse audiences will see other familiar actors, including Don McHenry, Roland Hogue, Cort Steen, and others.

Quartet Will Hold August Festival Of Chamber Music

Woodstock, Aug. 4—Woodstock Festival of American Chamber Music will be held in Woodstock during the last week of August when there will be readings of American music by known and unknown American composers.

Three new compositions have so far been selected for the festival. The composers are Carl Gustav, William Ames, former Woodstock resident, and Vincent Perichetti, Philadelphia, who is one of today's most significant composers.

The festival is under the leadership of the Modern Art String Quartet whose members have recently given most successful concerts in Kilbourne Hall of the Eastman School of Music during its summer series. Members of the quartet have taken up residence in Woodstock in the interest of good chamber music, particularly contemporary music.

Many prominent Woodstock music lovers have offered the hospitality of their homes to the composers who have been invited to take part in the festival.

Those sponsoring the Music Festival believe that its running concurrently with the Art Conference will be of special interest to both musicians and artists concerned because it presents an opportunity for an exchange of ideas, which will be helpful to both fields of art.

Gallery Conference Open to Public

Woodstock, Aug. 4—Preliminary plans are under way for the First Annual Conference to be held in the Woodstock Art Gallery on August 29th and 30th by the Woodstock Artists' Association. The two-day conference will be closed with a party at the Art Students League on the evening of August 30th, with the Woodstock Artists' Association and Artists' Equity collaborating.

The purpose of this conference is to bring about a better understanding between artists, collectors, museums directors and laymen. The various groups will be represented at the conference in which the public will be invited to participate.

While the speaker roster is not complete, it is known at this time that Harold Clureman, Broadway director and producer, and writer of art news for Today, will be present. Mr. Clureman has just returned from Paris where he has spent much time talking with many of the artists there, and will have interesting data for the conference. Hudson Walker, director, Artists' Equity, also has accepted the association's invitation to take part in their first annual conference.

Discussion Forum

Woodstock, Aug. 4—Artists and Laymen is the topic selected for the Woodstock Artists' Association's discussion forum to be held on Wednesday evening at the Woodstock Art Gallery. The speakers on this occasion will be Joseph Pollett, Mitchell Siporin, Alexandra Padwa and Robert Phelps.
